

there once was a boy who cried because he was alone his tears flooded out of his house and swept his town killing every living thing in its path until the boy was the only one left and he knew that he had never known what it meant to be lonely.